SNAP

- The One Big Beautiful Bill contains the most significant reforms made to the SNAP program in its entire history.
- The One Big Beautiful Bill ensures SNAP works the way Congress intended it to, by reinforcing work, restoring program integrity, and instituting long-overdue accountability incentives to control costs and end administrative overreach.
- SNAP needed to be reformed. Since 2019, enrollment has increased by 17 percent, while the overall cost of the program has grown by 83 percent.
- Because the federal government entirely funds SNAP benefits, there is minimal incentive for states to control costs, enhance efficiencies, and improve outcomes for recipients.
- The House Republicans' reforms to SNAP save taxpayers nearly $200 billion by introducing a modest, incentivebased state benefit share, expanding work requirements for capable Americans without dependents, controlling runaway state administrative costs, and restricting eligibility for illegal aliens.
